Well, being a mature person, I am always conscious (aware) of my belonging. once in a blue moon it happens that I lost or misplace my important and valuable item. Here I would like to talk about a time I lost my phone in a hotel.

I vividly remember, couple of years ago my father organised a family trip of two weeks in Thailand. He just wanted to bill some quality time with us. We were so elated and enjoying every moment of our trip.

As, I'm a gregarious person, I was making and uploading all my videos and photos on social sites. Even I brought my camera to Thailand in order to capture some sweet memories of my trip.

On the day of returning I was shooting a vlog with my camera & getting reviews of my family members regarding their experience. I don't know where I placed my phone while capturing video.

Soon, we hit the road to airport when I was in plane, I realized that I didn't have my phone with me.

I felt blue because it was so expensive and all my files and photos saved in that phone.

This incident ruined my happiness and I was feeling down in the dumps. My father was trying to cheer up my mood but I was on the verge of tears.

When we reached India, I tried to make calls on my number but it was switched off.
