- I vividly remember, a couple of months ago, I was travelling by bus from Batala to Amritsar. It was a hot summer day and the bus was so full. I was feeling suffocated in the bus. Suddenly, I received a call from an unknown number.

Intially, I ignored by thinking it is a spam call.

But again, I received call from same number. I answered it with a question. Who is there?

- A guy replied, He is John He said, Do you gave any entrance exam recently?

- Without any thought, I said yes.

- Then he replied, congratulation, you have cleared your test.

- After listening this, I felt on the seventh (happy) heaven. I didn't confirm the college name, roll numbers or any other details. How stupid I was I didn't have any idea that it might be a spam call.

- The man told me to pay 5000 Rs in order to register in my course. Without any second thought, I told him to text the banking details and assured him to send money immediately after call.

- Then I hanged up the Phone and was going to send money.

- With God's Grace, I received an email in next few seconds. When I opened it, I was bolt Shocked from the blue because the college team informed me about delay in result due to some College site issues.

Then a quick thought hit my mind that It was a spam Call and I was going to lose my money.

I talked about the incident to my fellow-traveller she told me to be aware next time as it has become a vogue nowadays.
