Well, it is a common thing that people lose something unintentionally. I have also lost many little things in my school like stationary items. But here, I would like to talk about an incident when I found a wallet of a stranger while traveling by bus. Actually, a couple of months ago, I was going to my college which is located at a short distance from my village. I took a bus to reach my destination at about 9 am. I sat down on a seat in order to unwind my mind. After few minutes, a purse fell down and then I stopped to take it. I checked it and asked all the people who were on the bus. I felt blue and astounded when everyone said no for that. After that, I checked the wallet and I saw an ID card by which it was confirmed that this wallet belongs to a student who was studying in my college and made an announcement

Finally, I gave it to its owner. She was so thankful and appreciated me for being a helping hand for her and honest. I was on cloud nine as the wallet held her important cards as well as cash. At last, that was the time when I found something lost. After that, I become more attentive during journey.

Then, I endeavour to recall the circumstances, or, time when I had that specific item and then able to find, then it seem as child's play to find that item.

Q4 Should parents teach their children to return things lost by others?

A Without any doubt, it's an obligation to teach about good manners to children. Furthermore, people should never keep anything that does not belong to them. So, parents ought to instill values in their offspring.

Q5 why do some people enjoy collecting antiques or second-hand items?

A In my perspective, because of historical values attached to those products people may keep them. Besides this, those who are passionate about art often prefer to collect paints and sculptures from well known artists.
